Genre: Drama, Thriller

 Runtime: 1 hour 35 minutes

Rating: R for language, violence, and disturbing content

Plot Summary:

'It Was Just an Accident' is a gripping drama-thriller that follows the story of Jack Harris, a quiet and unassuming mechanic who has spent years rebuilding his life after being released from an Iranian prison. Jack's past is marked by physical and emotional trauma, which he has tried to keep hidden behind a mask of normalcy. However, his life takes a dramatic turn when he encounters a man named Amir, who bears an uncanny resemblance to his sadistic jailhouse captor, Hassan. As Jack's memories of his time in prison begin to resurface, he becomes convinced that Amir is Hassan, and a cat-and-mouse game ensues.

As the story unfolds, Jack's obsession with Amir grows, threatening to destroy the fragile peace he has built for himself. The film takes a dark and intense turn as Jack's past and present collide, forcing him to confront the traumatic events that have haunted him for so long.

Themes:

* The lasting impact of trauma on individuals and communities
* The complexities of memory and identity
* The blurred lines between reality and fantasy

Cinematography Review:

'It Was Just an Accident' is a visually stunning film that takes full advantage of high-definition streaming technology. The cinematography is a masterclass in creating a sense of tension and unease, using a combination of close-ups, wide shots, and clever camera angles to immerse the viewer in the world of the story.

The film's use of lighting is particularly noteworthy, with a muted color palette that reflects the bleakness and desolation of Jack's past experiences. The contrast between the harsh, unforgiving light of the prison scenes and the warm, golden tones of the present-day scenes serves to highlight the emotional distance between Jack's past and present.

The cinematography also makes effective use of point-of-view shots, placing the viewer directly in Jack's shoes and allowing them to experience the world through his eyes. This creates a sense of intimacy and immediacy, drawing the viewer into the story and making them a participant in Jack's emotional journey.
